

The Office of Diversity Management and Equal Employment Opportunity (DMEEEO) has prepared the Department of Veterans Affairs (VA) Historically Black Colleges and Universities (HBCU) Graduates (FY 2003 Edition) book in recognition of VA's HBCU graduates and the many contributions that they have made to this Nation. For more than 100 years, HBCUs have provided access to higher education for Black students as well as many others, regardless of race or creed. As you look through the book, you will notice a representation of a diverse workforce that reflects the diversity of those we serve. Also, this will afford you the opportunity to get to know your alumni colleagues.

These fine institutions of higher education have graduated medical center directors; physicians; a deputy assistant secretary; housekeeping aides; motor vehicle operators; directors, social workers; registered nurses; a chairman; claims clerks; chaplains; EEO managers; vocational rehabilitation specialists; veterans service representatives; attorneys; dietitians; pharmacists; human resources specialists; computer specialists; office managers; program support assistants; audiologists; and many more who work in occupations that are important to VA's mission of serving the Nation's veterans.

Thank you for providing the Office of DMEEEO the opportunity to recognize HBCU graduates and the many contributions they have made to this great Nation. Enjoy the book!

INTRODUCTION

For more than 100 years, HBCUs have provided access to higher education for Black students as well as many others regardless of race. These colleges and universities educate and train people in high-demand career fields, including education, medicine, allied health, science, engineering, and public service.

The Department of Veterans Affairs joined the Nation in observing Historically Black Colleges and Universities (HBCU) Week during September 14-20, 2003. The Office of Diversity Management and Equal Employment Opportunity would like to recognize the more than 900 VA employees who are HBCU graduates for their many years of dedication to serving veterans. For the first time, VA's Historically Black Colleges and Universities Graduates (FY 2003 edition) book will enable staff to connect, network, and share their HBCU learning experience with colleagues throughout VA. This book will also be updated each year to include new HBCU graduates.
